Re: Full Statement of Conditions of Confidentiality and Privilege Related to EMail Correspondence

Take notice that email (including by reference all files attached to it) (collectively referred to herein as "Email") originating from or directed to any of the email addresses incorporating the "flottco.com" domain is intended solely for the information and use of the persons authorized by Flott & Co. PC to review email sent from or to the email addresses listed in the "From", "To", "CC", or "Bcc" fields ("Address Fields") shown in the email's header ("Addressee").

Email addressed as described above may contain legally privileged and/or otherwise confidential information. If you or someone you know receives an Email sent from or to the flottco.com domain who is not an Addressee (or an authorized representative of an Addressee), you (and they) are advised that any review, disclosure, reproduction, re-transmission or other dissemination or use of the Email is strictly prohibited. If you are not authorized to receive Email at one of Address Fields and, therefore are not an authorized Addressee and accidentally receive Email from us or intended to be sent to us, please promptly send a message to administration@flottco.com or call +1-703-525-5110, extension 121 and advise us of your mistaken receipt of the Email and the circumstances by which you received it. Please also immediately delete the Email from any computer in your control and destroy all physical copies of it. Thank you.

All Email originating from or directed to the "flottco.com" domain is being sent or received by a validly licensed US law firm engaged in the practice of law. Thus, any mistaken recipient of such an Email should be aware that the contents of the Email may be protected under the attorney-client privilege afforded under US law and the laws of other nations.
